

CLEARVISION OPTICAL PARTICIPATES IN CAMP DAY AT SID JACOBSON JCC'S CAMP KEHILLA

On Monday, August 8, ClearVision Optical, a leader in the eyewear industry, participated in Camp Day at Sid Jacobson Jewish Community Center's Camp Kehilla, a day camp program for special needs children and teens.

Located at the Henry Kaufman campgrounds in Wheatley Heights, NY, ClearVision's entire group of summer interns headed to Camp Kehilla, a camp that provides social/recreational camping activities for high functioning children/teens with special needs, including those with autism spectrum disorders, communication disorders, ADHD, emotional/behavioral disorders, Down syndrome, and other developmental disabilities.

"We were thrilled to return to Sid Jacobson Jewish Community Center's Camp Kehilla again this summer," says Jennifer Trakhtenberg, ClearVision's Senior Talent Leader. "At ClearVision, we believe in giving back to the community by mentoring the younger generation. This year, we divided campers and our interns into teams for fun activities such as a water balloon toss, mummy wraps, relay races and more. The day was both fun and rewarding."

The company's highly-competitive, unique Intern Program runs year round and strives to empower students and make them more marketable in the workforce. Its current summer intern enrollment is 13 students, who come from diverse undergraduate and graduate programs including Marketing, Computer Science, Accounting, and Fashion Merchandising.
